The introduction of rosie extract into this cider marks a modern twist that maintains respect for tradition while embracing innovation.

What is Rosie Extract?

Rosie extract is a specialized flavoring derived from the petals and essence of certain rose varieties, carefully processed to preserve their delicate aroma and subtle taste. In the context of Laurie Lee Cider, Rosie extract is used to infuse the cider with floral notes that complement the natural apple flavors. This extract is often created through steam distillation or solvent extraction, ensuring a pure and concentrated essence. The inclusion of Rosie extract in cider production is relatively novel, representing a trend toward botanical infusions in alcoholic beverages. The floral characteristics enhance the sensory experience, adding complexity and depth to the cider's profile.
