The exam is administered by the Association of Marital & Family Therapy Regulatory Boards (AMFTRB) and typically consists of 150 multiple-choice questions. Candidates are usually given three hours to complete the exam. The exam format includes a mix of scenario-based questions and knowledge checks to evaluate both theoretical understanding and practical application.

Exam Format and Timing

The exam's multiple-choice format allows for a standardized assessment of core competencies. Questions often require critical thinking and application of therapeutic concepts to clinical situations. Time management is crucial since candidates must answer all questions within the allotted time frame without sacrificing accuracy.

Eligibility and Registration

To be eligible for the MFT national exam, candidates must meet specific educational and supervised experience requirements established by their state licensing board. Registration involves submitting an application through the AMFTRB website and scheduling the exam at an approved testing center. Understanding the registration process is vital for timely exam preparation.

Assessment questions focus on identifying mental health disorders, conducting clinical interviews, and applying diagnostic criteria such as the DSM-5. Competence in differential diagnosis and treatment planning is evaluated in this section.

Therapeutic Interventions

Questions in this category assess knowledge of intervention techniques tailored to individuals, couples, and families. Candidates should understand evidence-based practices and culturally sensitive approaches to therapy.
