What Is Naked Forex Trading?

Naked forex trading refers to the practice of trading currencies using only the price charts without any technical indicators. Traders rely on price action to identify potential entry and exit points, focusing on the raw movements of currency pairs. This method involves analyzing candlestick patterns, chart formations, trend lines, and support and resistance levels. By removing indicators, naked forex trading aims to reduce lag and noise that can sometimes obscure true market conditions. It requires a deep understanding of market psychology and the ability to interpret price behavior accurately. The strategy is often favored by experienced traders who value simplicity and clarity in their analysis.
