Materials Needed

- Assorted papers (rice paper, cardstock, or mulberry paper)
- Cutting tools (craft knife, scissors)
- Bone folder or folding tool
- Adhesive (acid-free glue)
- Pencil and eraser for sketching
- Optional: paint and brushes for detailing

Step 1: Design and Sketch

Begin by sketching the outline of the fish, focusing on the shape and proportions. Consider the placement of fins, eyes, and scales to guide the cutting and folding process.

Step 2: Cutting the Base Shape

Using the sketch as a template, cut the main body of the fish from a sturdy paper. Precision is crucial to ensure clean edges and accurate proportions.

Step 3: Folding and Shaping

Employ folding techniques to add dimensionality, such as creating fins or a curved body to simulate movement. Use a bone folder for sharp creases and smooth curves.

Step 4: Layering and Detailing

Cut smaller pieces to represent scales and fins, layering them onto the base shape with glue. Add texture by embossing or folding small sections. Painting can be applied at this stage for color and shading.
